••• A ship to the southward last evening at sunset.

DEPARTURES.—None.

CUSTOM HOUSE NOTICES.

WARRANTS ON GOODS OUTWARD.—By an Act passed by the Legislative Council on the 20th day of December, it is enacted, that from and after the first day of January, 1845, all goods intended for shipment to the Queen's Wharf or private wharves, whether such goods are shipped at the Queen's Wharf or private wharves, shall be liable to a warehouse rate to the Crown, whether such goods are shipped at the Queen's Wharf or private wharves, and shall be liable to a warehouse rate to the Crown, whether such goods are shipped at the Queen's Wharf or private wharves, and shall be liable to a warehouse rate to the Crown, whether such goods are shipped at the Queen's Wharf or private wharves.

WARRANTS ON GOODS INWARD.—By an Act passed by the Legislative Council, it is enacted, that from and after the first day of January, 1845, the rates of warehouse chargeable on all goods imported shall be as follows: On all goods landed at any of the Queen's Wharves, one-third of the charges usually levied upon goods imported and landed at such wharves previous to the present year. On all goods landed at any of the private wharves, one-third of the charges usually levied upon goods imported and landed at such wharves previous to the present year. On all goods landed at any of the private wharves, one-third of the charges usually levied upon goods imported and landed at such wharves previous to the present year.

Custom House, January 1.

The Mailand has brought 80 bales of wool from Port Macquarie. She spoke nothing on the passage.

The banquet is ready for sea, and will proceed to the whaling grounds as soon as a captain has been appointed to her.

The passage of the Apurou to and from Norfolk Island has been completed in seven days from the time of her leaving Sydney. This is, we believe, the quickest on record.

MAIL BOAT LONDON.—The Parrot will leave the first vessel for London, and it is expected that she will sail on Sunday next.

The Lady Ann is at Boyd's Wharf waiting for a whaling expedition, having become the property of Mr. B. Boyd.

STRAITEN.—There will be four steamers leaving the Hunter River Wharf this evening. The James Watt, at six; the Robert Town, at eight; the Moreton Bay, at nine; the For Merrett; and the Shamrock, for Newcastle.

THE NEW POST OFFICE ACT.

We recently announced to our readers, that during the last session of Parliament an Act had been passed for placing all the Post Office establishments in the British colonies, including both revenue and management, under the control of the Post Master General of England, and the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury. When first informed of this measure, we confess we were somewhat startled. At the first blush, it appeared so despotically an encroachment upon the rights of our local legislatures, that we were inclined to denounce it in the most indignant terms. Coming upon us by surprise, without notice or one word of explanation, it seemed not only an act of tyranny, but an act of tyranny performed in the most audacious and insulting manner. And although our view of the principle of the measure has been considerably modified, indeed totally altered, by subsequent reflection, we are yet by no means reconciled to the abruptness of its introduction. We must still complain that our colonial authorities have been treated with a degree of discourtesy amounting to positive rudeness, and savouring of that haughty spirit of dominancy and dictation which free Britons are not accustomed to brook.

Apart, however, from this ungraciousness of manner, the measure itself will be found, on mature consideration, to be constitutionally right, and calculated to work well for the general good. The conveyance of letters by mail has always been deemed the province of Government, and the experience of two centuries has but confirmed the wisdom and sound policy of that great national monopoly. To no department of the public service, perhaps, has the attention of Parliament been directed with a keener vigilance, not from the enormous sums of money having been passed, relating to the Post Office system, during the last hundred and thirty years. And yet, after all this constant investigation, and all these attempts to improve the machinery by legislative enactment, the principle of the monopoly has never, we believe, been so much questioned, all political parties having been unanimous in the belief that no better principle could be found.

The transmission of letters is, in every sense of the word, a national interest. Not only does it concern every individual in the realm, but every British subject in relation to all other British subjects, and to the whole world. It is for the interest of us all, individually and collectively, as private citizens, and as members of the body politic, and of the great human family, that epistolary correspondence should be conducted with safety, punctuality, and expedition. The most effectual means of accomplishing this is to confide in the resources and integrity of the State. No private resources would be equal to the magnitude of the task; no private agency would be entitled to the boundless confidence which the peculiar nature of the service requires. Therefore it is that the mode of operation has been so sedulously guarded by the legislature, and the working of the system so strictly confined to the hands of the Executive Government. No expense has been spared to make it complete in all its parts. The lights of experience have been carefully watched and implicitly followed. Improvement has followed upon improvement. The statute book bears witness, that ever since the early part of the seventeenth century, the collective wisdom of the three estates has deemed this subject worthy of its deepest anxiety and most elaborate research.

But the grandest efforts at improvement have been reserved for the second quarter of the nineteenth century. The introduction of steam-conveyance, by land and by water, has furnished Post Office facilities of which our ancestors never dreamt. Availing themselves of these new powers, and of the accumulated suggestions of experience, the British authorities have, within the last few years, made splendid advances in that noble science which Speeds the soft intercourse of soul with soul, And wafts a sigh from Indus to the Pole.

Not satisfied with the wonderful achievements which the rail-roads enabled them to accomplish within the shores of their own island, they have manifested an honourable ambition to conquer the impediments of oceans and continents, and to extend the benefits of speed and rapid postage to every corner of Her Majesty's dominions, and indeed to all parts of the civilized globe.

To this ambition—would that ambition were always so beneficial to mankind!—is doubtless to be ascribed the measure under consideration. It would naturally occur to those charged with Post Office administration, that in order to give due efficacy to the comprehensive system they were desirous of establishing, it would be indispensable that it should be uniform and harmonious in all its parts, and that there should exist a central power by which any deviations might be at once detected and controlled. Regarding the colonies as integral portions of the Queen's realm, connected, by political, commercial, and social ties, with all the other portions, they would see that it would be both practicable and advantageous to include them in one consolidated system. Hence the new Act of Parliament.

As before observed, it may seem to infringe upon the prerogatives of the local legislatures; but looking at the substantial benefits which it is calculated to secure to the colony, to all colonies, and to the empire at large, we may be well content to overlook any such superficial objection. The chief object aimed at is, to facilitate our external intercourse. It is believed to be the intention of Her Majesty's Government to establish a regular line of steam packets between England and the British possessions in India and Australia, and for the purpose of securing vigour and regularity to their movements, the entire machinery has been placed under the supervision of the Treasury. With the strictly internal operations of our Post Office, it is probable the authorities at home will not interfere, further than to see that they are carried out on the most approved and economical principles. With this exception, we presume the details will be left to the local Government.

A very serious point with the colonists is the required transference of our Post Office revenue to the hands of the Lords of the Treasury. The surplus, should there be a surplus, is to be applied, to be sure, to strictly local purposes; but then it is to be so applied as the Lords of the Treasury, or any three of them, shall think proper to direct. Should the surplus be at any time considerable, the discretionary power would be virtually a large addition to the civil list of the Parliamentary Schedules, already so exorbitant as to form one of our crying grievances. We apprehend, however, that in point of fact there will be no surplus. The probability is, that the packet establishment, or the proportion of it fairly chargeable to New South Wales, together with our own internal expenses, will not only absorb every shilling of the departmental revenue, but cost the British Treasury several extra thousand pounds per annum.

On the whole, assuming that the Act will be honestly worked, with a bona fide regard to the interests of the colonists as well as to those of the mother country, we hail it as an auspicious measure.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

BEFORE HIS HONOR MR. JUSTICE DICKINSON.

UTTERING COUNTERFEIT COIN.

Thomas Benn was indicted for having, on the 29th November, 1844, uttered a piece of false and counterfeit coin resembling half a crown, to one William Toogood.

By the evidence of the prosecutor, it appeared that on the evening in question, the defendant was in the company of Benn at the corner of Pitt and Market streets, in company with another man, and called for two glasses of ale, tendering the piece of base coin in payment. Having received the change, the prisoner and his companion went away, but soon after their departure the business of the coin was discovered, and the prisoner was followed to Stone's public house, where he was seen to utter the same piece of coin to a man named Ball, who at that time was taken into custody for uttering base coin. It was not shown, however, that there was any intimate connexion between himself and Ball.

The jury did not deny having passed the piece of base coin in question, but denied having any knowledge that it was bad.

His Honor left it to the jury to determine upon the evidence which had been given, whether the prisoner had uttered the piece of coin being really bad at the time he uttered it.

The jury without leaving the box, found a verdict of Not Guilty, and the prisoner was discharged.

STABBING WITH INTENT, &c.

Ann O'Connor was indicted for having, on the 13th of December last, stabbed one James Ligan, with a dagger, on the left side of the breast, with intent to do the said James Ligan some grievous bodily harm.

From the evidence of Ligan, who had formerly been second mate of the Garland Grove, it appeared that he had been in company with the prisoner, at her house, on the evening named in the indictment, when some difference arose between them, and the prosecutor was about to leave the house, when the prisoner took down a Chinese knife or dagger, which was hanging near the mantelpiece, and stabbed him in the left side of the breast; the prisoner then fled, and the prosecutor pursued her, and she was taken into custody. The purpose of repeating the blow or of stabbing herself, when it was taken from her by a person present, named Walter; there had been a great deal of drinking before this, and the prisoner had been in a state of intoxication. The testimony of the prosecutor was confirmed by Walter, by whom the prisoner had been given in custody; and Sergeant M'Crook, by whom she was taken, gave a similar account of the transaction, but added that she was so intoxicated as, in his opinion, to be unconscious of what she was doing.

The prisoner offered no defence, and His Honor left it to the jury to determine whether in inflicting the wound she had really intended to do some grievous bodily harm, or whether in her intoxicated passion she had contemplated merely a common assault, and had held the first thing that came to hand, as the means of carrying out her intentions. His Honor likewise called the attention of the jury to the weapon itself, which was a species of Chinese knife, of a very fragile nature, very different from the kind of offensive weapon usually known as a dagger.

The jury, after retiring for about ten minutes, found the prisoner guilty of a common assault, and she was remanded for sentence.

SETTING FIRE TO THE THEATRE.

James Benn was indicted for having, on the 25th of September last, set fire to a certain house in the Victoria Theatre. No prisoner of the name of Joseph Wyatt, with intent to injure the said Joseph Wyatt.

The Solicitor-General having made some incidental remarks upon the circumstances of the case, called Mr. Thompson, the acting manager of the Theatre, from whose evidence it appeared, that on the day named in the indictment he saw a small jet of flame issue from the Victoria Theatre. No prisoner of the name of Joseph Wyatt, with intent to injure the said Joseph Wyatt.

On cross-examination, by the prisoner, the evidence of the Theatre, from whose evidence it appeared, that on the day named in the indictment he saw a small jet of flame issue from the Victoria Theatre. No prisoner of the name of Joseph Wyatt, with intent to injure the said Joseph Wyatt.

SYDNEY STREETS.

(From Yesterday's Government Gazette.)

COLONIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE, Sydney, 6th January, 1845.—His Excellency the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Executive Council, having deemed it expedient to continue certain streets to the Seminary Quay, in Sydney Cove, and also to open two other streets in connection therewith, the following are hereby given in conformity with the provisions of the Act of the Governor and Council, 4th William IV, No. 11, intitled, "An Act for making, altering, and improving the roads, thoroughfares, and streets, and for opening, widening, and improving the streets in the towns thereof," a survey and tracing, showing the intended line of the said streets, are now deposited in the office of the Surveyor-General, and all persons interested therein are requested to transmit in writing, to the Clerk of the Executive Council, within one month from the date of the publication of this notice, any well founded objection which may exist to the continuation and formation of the said streets, namely:—

1. Macquarie-street, in prolongation of the present street from Bent-street, to the South Cove, at the mouth of Sydney Cove.

2. Phillip-street, in prolongation of the present street from Bent-street to the Circular Quay, passing through the eastern end of the present street, and terminating at the Circular Quay.

3. Elizabeth-street, in continuation of the present street to the east side of the Queen's Warehouse, but comprehending only the portion which lies between Bent-street and the Circular Quay.

4. Castlereagh-street, in prolongation of the present street from Hunter-street to the Circular Quay, by the west side of the proposed widening of the present street, and terminating at the Circular Quay.

5. Pitt-street, in prolongation of the present street from Hunter-street to the Circular Quay, to a point near the north-east corner of William-street, adjoining the stairs at the Queen's Warehouse.

6. Bridge-street, in prolongation of the present street from Macquarie-place to Macquarie-street.

7. Albert-street, leading at right angles from Macquarie-street to Phillip-street.

8. Alfred-street, being in continuation of Albert-street, leading from the Wharf to Pitt-street.

In reference, however, to the line proposed for the continuation of Castlereagh-street, it is to be understood, that the Government does not pledge itself to remove the building now used as the Treasury within a less period than six years, or until funds for the erection of another building shall have been provided by the Legislature.

QUEEN'S ARMS,
DARLINGHURST, OPPOSITE THE NEW
COURT HOUSE.
MONIEZ having taken the above house, begs to inform the public that it is now re-opened, and that refreshments
of every description can be had in a first-rate
style, and on most reasonable terms.
For the accommodation of gentlemen attending the Court, a large room up stairs will be laid out with refreshments.

GENUINE PERSIAN SPURIOUS
ECONOMY.
THE senseless clamour after ultra cheapness, (or in other words "spurious economy," which has been the cause of general discontent among the colonists of New South Wales by the depressing depression of the last few years, is now that a more auspicious state of things is opening upon us, gradually disappearing, and which our brighter prospects, a feeling at once more rational and more worthy the ac-knowledgeed intelligence of this community is perceptibly coming into existence. A desire for "genuine economy" is now beginning to manifest itself in every quarter. As a fact strongly indicative of this favourable change, H. HAYES'S tailoring business, which has always been the most extensive in the colony, has within the last few months increased more than one-half, and H. H. is determined that it shall still further increase,
if such a result can be ensured by giving the best material, the best fit, the best workmanship, and most recherché style, at the lowest prices (quality considered) in New South Wales.
A suit of clothes made to order, and made
well, in eight hours (in cases of urgency), is the convenience of settlers, a large supply of first-rate colonial ready-made clothing always on hand, at the well-known address,
H. HAYES,
Tailor and Draper, 461, George-street,

EBENEZER COAL WHARF, ROBERTS-STREET, AT THE BOTTOM OF
MARKET-STREET.
THOMAS ROBINSON has the honour of informing the public generally, that having entered into a partnership with the proprietor of the Ebenezer Works, he is enabled to ensure a constant supply to his friends, of the best and cheapest coals shipped into the port of Sydney. It is unnecessary to state that the coals which have already been achieved in public utilization in favour of these coals, not only as regards the absence of small sittings, but the durability and of their burning, which has obtained for them a celebrity defying all competition.
T. R. solicits the support of his friends in sending their orders to the Depot, Ebenezer Coal Wharf, at the bottom of Market-street;
or to his Establishment, George-street, near the Royal Hotel, where favours will be punctually attended to.
Terms—Cash on delivery.
Present Wharf Price, 16s. per ton of 28 bushels
Net Delivery, 16s. 6d. ditto ditto.
N.B. Liberal allowance by the cargo, and supplies by contract entered into.

THANKS FOR THE PAST.
AT the risk of being considered an egotist, S. Elliott considers it due to his friends and the result of the result of his exertions during the past year.
This time twelve months he commenced his business in Charlotte-place, with a determination to sell goods, cheap and genuine articles, never knowingly to give an inferior article to that offered—adding constant personal attention and despatch in executing orders. In the wine department he will challenge any person to say he ever introduced a stock more than the prices advertised for his "Bosman Wine,"
and through his exertions he has induced one gentleman to send his Colonial Wine into the market, and another is soon to follow.
The result is, an amount of business has been done far surpassing his most sanguine expectations, and the confidence of customers obtained. This fact is very gratifying, for he has been instructed to open a stock again
with orders for associates, enclosing cheques by persons quite unknown to him, and from nearly all parts of the country. To all therefore he tenders his thanks for the past, and confidently trusts in the future.
N.B. For fresh list of prices see another advertisement.
